the Chinese Embassy in Switzerland

Dear all,

In January 2017, Chinese President Xi Jinping attended the annual meeting of the World Economic Forum in Davos and delivered an important speech urging for the promotion of economic globalization, investment and trade facilitation. In 2021 and 2022, President Xi Jinping also attended the events of the Davos platform for two consecutive years and delivered important speeches. The world is currently troubled by both the COVID pandemic and geopolitical turmoils; economic recovery is also becoming increasingly difficult. The Chinese ideas and solutions put forward by President Xi Jinping are of great practical significance to maintain world peace, development and global economic recovery.

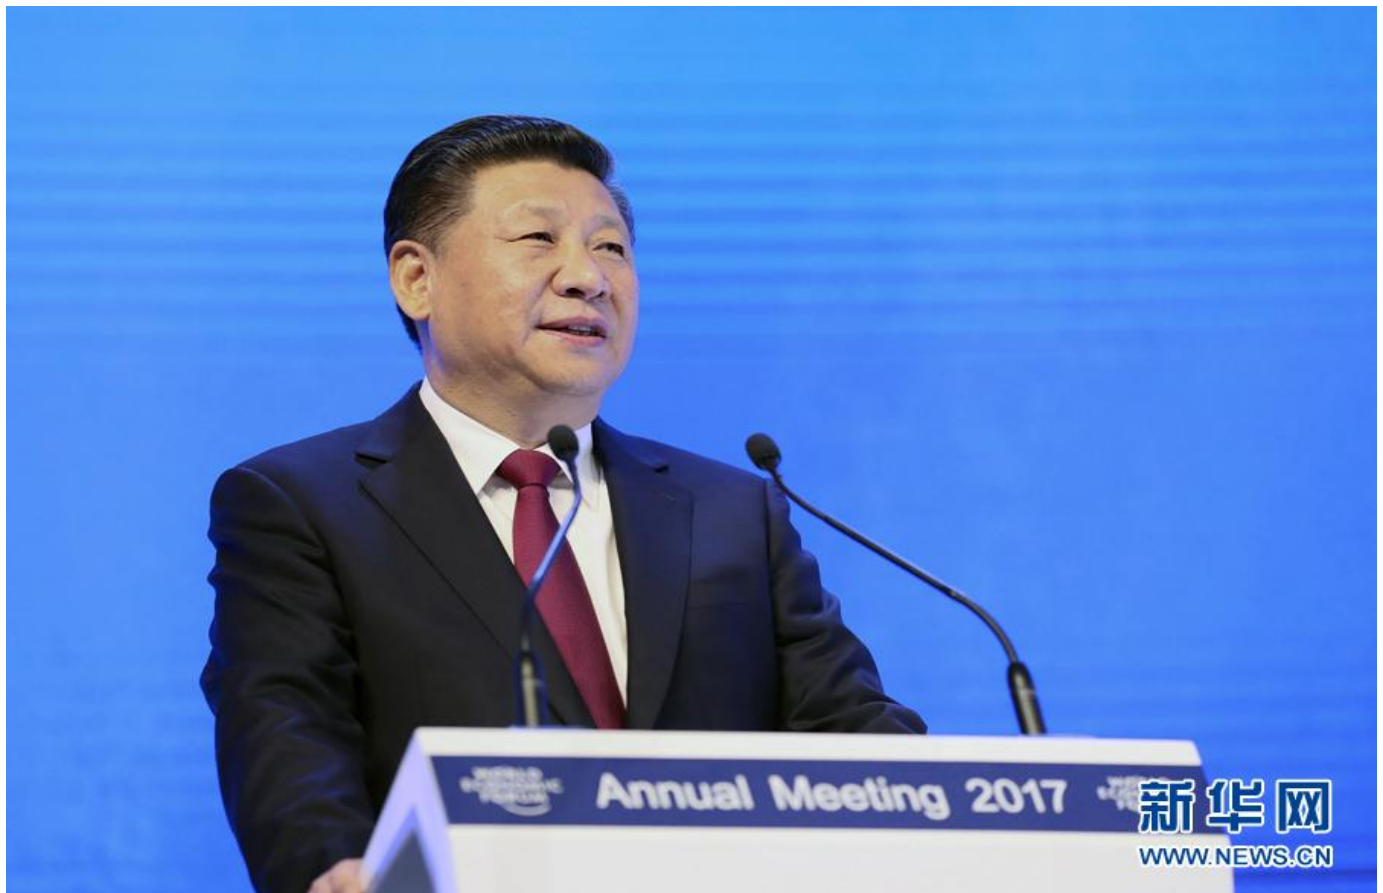

The situation in Ukraine is a source of great concern for everyone. President Xi Jinping and State Councilor and Foreign Minister Wang Yi have recently communicated with leaders of several countries on related issue and clarified China's position. China's fundamental attitude on the Ukraine issue is to urge peace process and promote negotiation. China has always been on the side of peace, on the side of supporting dialogue, and on the side of pushing the situation to cool down.

In March, China's National "Two Sessions" were held. We summarized the achievements of economic and social development over the past year, set the main goals and tasks of economic and social development and policy initiatives for the whole year, and set an economic growth target of 5.5 percent. We will place emphasis on stabilizing growth, deepening reform and opening, and strive to complete the annual economic and social development goals and tasks, so as to deliver a satisfactory answer to the 20th National Congress of the Communist Party of China.

We thank you for your attention and your interest to our Newsletter, we welcome and value your comments and suggestions.

Yours sincerely
Wang Shiting
Chinese Ambassador to Switzerland

On January 17, 2017, Chinese President Xi Jinping delivered an important speech at the opening plenary meeting of the 2017 World Economic Forum (WEF) in Davos. In that speech entitled "Sharing the responsibilities of our time and promoting global growth", he expressed China's unwavering support for economic globalization and its firm opposition to protectionism. A speech that had made an impression and still arouses comments today in the world press, but also in business, political and intellectual circles.

Xinhua Commentary: Understanding China's whole-process people's democracy at "two sessions"

Whole-process people's democracy, a creation of the Communist Party of China (CPC) in leading the people to pursue, develop and realize democracy, embodies the Party's innovation in advancing China's democratic theories, systems and practices. China's ongoing two sessions offer observers a window into the idea and practice of whole-process people's democracy, which has become a buzzword in China's political arena over the past years.
